BRIBERY INVESTIGATION

Inquest Is Ordered in Cambridge Mystery.

NEW MUENTER CLUE

Man Signing Name of Missing Harvard Instructor at Dover, N. H., Hotel.

A man who signed his name "E. Muenter, Cambridge," registered at the American House in Dover, N. H., at 11:40 o'clock to-day, according to dispatches from that city. After signing his name he walked out of the hotel and has not yet returned. The clerk was not at the desk when the man registered, but he was seen by a traveling man who was in the office. This traveling man said that he took little notice of the stranger, but from what he did observe he gave a description that would fit Muenter in a general way.

The Dover police are now investigating and trying to find some trace of the man who registered.

An inquest into the death of Mrs. Leone Muenter, wife of Erich Muenter, has been ordered by Judge Almy of the Cambridge District Court, to be held Friday morning at 9 o'clock.

All those persons who have refused to give the police any information they may have about Muenter and his affairs will be summoned to appear and will be forced to tell what they know. The list of those who will be compelled to testify is a long one and includes many men connected with Harvard University.

Among the witnesses will be Frank Bryant, the student friend of Muenter, who lived in the Muenter house; Mrs. Edith Chase, the Christian Scientist and nurse, who attended Mrs. Muenter until a few hours before her death; Bertha Derick, the nurse who took care of the children one the trip to Chicago, where Muenter carried his wife's body for cremation, and Mrs. Fales, who told the BOSTON AMERICAN of Mrs. Muenter's complaint, on the day before she died, that there was a strange taste to her food.

From Harvard College these men will be summoned:

Professor H. C. Bierwith.
Dr. A. W. Ryder.
Instructor H. J. Weber.
A. M. Sturtevant.
W. A. Colwell.
F. Hagens.
Le B. R. Briggs.
E. H. P. Grossman.
F. W. C. Lieder.
W. G. Howard.
Dr. M. M. Skinner.
Professor H. S. White.
Professor J. A. Walz.
Professor E. M. Weasel.
Professor Kuno Francke.
Professor G. L. Kittredge.
Professor W. H. Schofield.
Professor H. C. G. von Jagemann.

Frank Bryant, who has kept silent ever since the police began investigating the case, will be forced to tell at the inquest what he knows of Muenter's habits and home life and of his life while in the West.

Perhaps the most important witness is Mrs. Edith Chase. She will tell how Muenter took charge in the sick room on the night before his wife died, and how he awakened her at six o'clock the next morning with the words:

"It is all over. My wife is dead."

She will tell of her immediate visit to the room and that rigor mortis had set in, showing that Mrs. Muenter must have died some time before her husband called the nurse.

Mrs. Fales will tell the story she told the BOSTON AMERICAN, in which she said that the day before Mrs. Muenter died she complained of a strange taste to her food. Bertha Derick will tell of Muenter's appearance during the journey to Chicago with his wife's body.

An effort will be made to have Miss Bertha Muenter, the sister, who left for Chi-

LABOR DEMANDS CITY LIGHTING IN BOSTON

Representatives of labor unions and these industrial interests in Boston, and citizens who believe in the principle of municipal ownership, met in the Common Council chamber this afternoon before the committee of fifteen appointed by the Common Council and the Board of Aldermen to investigate municipal ownership of a lighting plant.

Several speakers were heard and they gave the committee their reasons why Boston should own its lighting plant, demonstrating that it has lost money because this public necessity is managed and owned by a private corporation.

Alderman Fred J. Kneeland was the first speaker. He protested vigorously against a meeting in which labor was so vitally interested being held in the afternoon when few of its representatives could afford to be present. He asked that the committee of fifteen have an evening session later, so that workingmen who were busy at their various employments during the day could be present and be heard in favor of municipal ownership.

No action on this suggestion was taken by the committee, however.

Professor Frank Parsons, president of the Municipal Ownership League, was the next speaker. Professor Parsons recited to the committee the fact that municipal ownership has been proved to be a success in many of the cities of the United States where it has it has been given a fair trial.

He said that in ten years the city of Detroit had saved $1,000,000 because it owned its own lighting plant. Boston is now paying $124 each for its arc lights, while Detroit is getting her lights at $60 each because the lighting plant is owned by the municipality.

DOCK TRUST GETS STREETS OF BOSTON

The Railroad Commissioners to-day granted the petition of the National Dock Trust to lay its railroad tracks in certain streets of East Boston. The conditions are simple, mainly that cars or engines shall not run between the hours of 5 in the morning and 12 at night. The usual danger precautions are named.

The tracks will cross Lewis street on Webster, Sumner street, between Lewis and Orleans, and Marginal street, near Lewis street.

East Boston citizens and labor unions concerned fought the petition from the start, and every effort was exerted to stop the granting of the petition on the ground that the operation of the cars would be a menace to life.

The Board of Aldermen had originally passed the order. Mayor Collins vetoed it. Alderman Curley induced the board to reconsider and pass the order over the Mayor's veto. It was done at a meeting, the legality of which is in question.

Alderman Linehan upheld Mayor Collins, and then charged that graft had figured in the passage over the veto. These charges went before the Grand Jury, under District Attorney Sughrue, but resulted in a "whitewash."

Public protest meetings followed, and the matter finally landed in the hands of the Railroad Commissioners.

LOTTERY RAIDS MAY IMPLICATE BOSTON AGENTS

Many prominent business men have been implicated in the raids made in the offices of the Honduras lottery in New York, Philadelphia and Wilmington, Del., say dispatches from New York. The Honduras lottery, which has agents in Boston, and is a continuation of the Louisiana lottery, has been struck a hard blow, and it may be put out of business as a consequence.

Hundreds of arrests, it is said, will follow the raids. It is reported that a warrant is issued for John M. Rogers, president of the John M. Rogers Press Company of Wilmington. In this establishment two tons of lottery tickets were found.

The raids made have struck terror to the hearts of members of the syndicate here. It is understood that government agents have the names of everyone in Boston who has been connected with the lottery. The postal authorities in Boston are investigating the workings of the local syndicate. It is estimated that at least $50,000 worth of tickets are sold here every month.

Rogers is stunned by the disclosures. He has been a respectable and wealthy citizen of Wilmington for years. When the Louisiana Lottery was forced to the wall, his concern, it is alleged, took control of the Wilmington interests.

The raids were well planned and not a word of warning was received. Operator Flynn and three deputy marshals in New York captured at the alleged dressmaking shop of Mrs. L. Dugan at No. 718 Seventh avenue, a box of lottery ticket plates and two boxes containing 1,000 tickets each.

Representative Simon Swig, of Taunton, Declared Money Was Offered Him to Vote Against the "Bucket Shop Bill"—Summoned by District Attorney.

At last the Massachusetts Legislature of 1905-'06, which has been concerned in more scandalous operations than any general court in the Commonwealth since that one which was implicated in the Bay State Gas steal, when, as has been written, "members were bought and sold like fish and sausages," is to be officially investigated.

Simon Swig, a representative to the House from Taunton, stated this afternoon that he had been offered a bribe to vote against the anti-bucket shop bill, which was killed by the House yesterday.

District Attorney Moran, upon hearing of Swig's charge, took immediate action, summoned the legislator to appear before him and tell his story, and he will probe the matter to the bottom.

A letter to the following effect was handed Representative Swig at the State House during the afternoon session:

> "I desire to see you at the District Attorney's office this afternoon, after the closing of the Legislature, in regard to an alleged bribery.
>
> Yours respectfully,
> John B. Moran,
> District Attorney.

It was delivered by Mr. Moran's private secretary, Mr. Mullen, to Sergeant-at-Arms Remington at the House, and by him given to Mr. Swig at his seat.

ADMITS BRIBE ATTEMPT.

Swig charges were first made in the course of an informal conversation with sundry legislators and reporters in the House corridor. At that time he was reported to have said that he had been offered $100 to vote against the anti-bucket shop bill, and that the proposition had been made by a member of the House. One or two of those who heard the statement said Mr. Swig declared the attempt to influence him had come from "members" of the House.

As soon as the news of this extraordinary statement was sent broadcast to the newspapers, Mr. Swig became more conservative. Two representatives of the BOSTON AMERICAN, who asked him for fuller details of the alleged attempt to bribe him, were met at first with a flat denial that he had made any such statement. He then said that what he had said was not for publication, but in the course of a personal conversation.

"But is it a fact," he was asked, "that an attempt was made to secure your support?"

"Yes, that is true?"

"Was it made by a member of the House?"

"No, not by any member of the House."

"By whom?"

"I can't give his name."

"NOT A REGULAR LOBBYIST."

"Do you mean you can't or that you decline to?"

"I think I will not at this time."

"Was he a lobbyist?"

"Not a regular lobbyist."

"What do you mean by that"?

"I mean he wasn't one of the lobbyists that are up here all the times."

"Who did he represent?"

"The bucket shops."

"Which?"

"One of them—one of the smaller ones elf is interested in a bucket shop."

"What did he offer you for your vote?"

"I don't think I will say."

"Was it $100?"

"I won't say just what it was."

"Was it money?"

"Well, it wasn't his blessing, or a silk hat or an umbrella. He made that clear enough."

"Was it something definite?"

"Oh, yes."

"HE CAME TO SEE ME."

"A definite amount of money?"

"Well, yes; but I don't want to say any more about it. He wanted me to vote against the bill, and I didn't. No, I won't say where he saw me. He came to see me."

Mr. Swig, although the only one to make concreate charges of graft in connection with the bucket shop bill, was not the only person to say, in general terms, that bribery was rampant at the House in the defeat of the measure. Senator Logan of Boston made a startling statement, immediately after the House debate to-day, when reconsideration of the bill was refused, when he said:

"One man bought fifty-four members of the House right outside the doors of this chamber to vote against the bill."

Unless pressure can be brought to bear on Representative Swig to deny his own statements when he comes before District Attorney Moran, that offcial is likely to make the first successful move this year to get at the bottom of the graft that has been rampant on Beacon Hill.

The anti-bucket shop bill, which has occasioned to-day's exposures, was defeated yesterday afternoon, and a motion to reconsider was to-day killed by a vote of 103 to 84.

Simon Swig is a representative from Taunton. He was born in Russia, and came to this country more than twenty years ago. he was for four years a member of the Taunton Board of Aldermen. In business he is listed i nthe legislative directory as a merchant, publisher and wholesale metal dealer.

GUILD MAKES APPEAL FOR 12 O'CLOCK BILL

IN SPECIAL MESSAGE URGES RECASTING OF THE MEASURE FOR BOSTON.

Governor Guild sent a special message to the Legislature this afternoon, suggesting the recommitting of the 12 o'clock liquor bill and the recasting of it so as to apply to Boston only.

"The city of Boston should be treated as a metropolist," says the Governor in his message.

"I trust that your honorable bodies will not let any consideration prevent the passage of some measure embodying the legislation that really is demanded, properly safeguarded, so that the privilege desired shall be granted only to those not likely to abuse it.

"For years it has been claimed that the conditions of life in Boston differ from those that prevail in smaller municipalities, and that the drastic restrictions with respect to hotel accommodations in Boston are driving business away from our chief city."

No wide-open laws for Massachusetts, but liberal regulations for Boston, says the Governor in effect, are what he asks the Legislature to enact in this bill.

Upon the reading of the Governor's message in the Senate the 12 o'clock liquor law was referred to the Committee on Liquor Laws. It is anticipated that the House will concur in the action of the Senate and refer to the joint committee.

A plan is on foot now to have a 12 o'clock liquor law framed which, as advised by Governor Guild, shall apply to the city of Boston only.

GOREMYKIN TO SUCCEED WITTE

FRANKLIN FUND $80,000 OFFER

The Board of Managers of the Franklin fund at the Mayor's office to-day voted to offer $80,000 for the 16,000 square feet of land at the southeast corner of Appleton and Berkeley streets, the property of the Hayes estate. The price asked is $100,000, [illegible] the managers think too high.

MAYOR SCHMITZ OF SAN FRANCISCO SAYS THAT THE STRICKEN CITY MUST HAVE SUPPLIES AT ONCE

HELP BOSTON AMERICAN RELIEF TRAIN NO. 5 START

GOODS SENT NOW WILL DO MOST GOOD

Express Companies Will Carry Things Free for You to the Train.

DELIVER GOODS PROMPTLY

The fifth relief train carrying shipments contributed to the BOSTON AMERICAN is to be rushed with supplies to the destitute people of San Francisco as soon as a carload is collected at freight shed No. 10, doors 6 and 7, at the Warren bridge yards of the Fitchburg division of the Boston & Maine railroad.

Food, clothing, household goods and medicines are the articles most needed.

The danger is now threatened that the stricken city will become worse off than it was a week ago for lack of both supplies and money.

"We will soon be in a bad way," wires Mayor Schmitz to the BOSTON AMERICAN.

"It is most unfortunate," continues the Mayor, "that reports should have been spread that we are amply supplied with money and food, for this is not the case.

"We lack both money and supplies, and must have them at once. We do not know how much money we are certain to get and are handicapped in ordering supplies.

"While it is true that contributions of money will be more to the purpose than contributions of supplies, I want it understood that where cash is not available anything will be most gratefully received."

Non-perishable goods are preferred.

Deliver at Freight Depot No. 10,
Doors 6 and 7, Warren Bridge.

There are but 108 cars of supplies on the way with relief to the devastated city, railroad officials declare. Four of these cars are being rushed under the direction of the BOSTON AMERICAN and Salvation Army, and laden with the food, clothing, household goods and medicines so generously contributed by the people of Boston and of all New England.

The fourth shipment left the North station yesterday at 3 p. m. It will be rushed over the Fitchburg road to Rotterdam Junction; over the West Shore to Buffalo, and from Buffalo to Chicago on the rails of the Lake Shore road. From Chicago the car will be hurried to Council Bluffs, Iowa, where the Union Pacific engines will speed it into Ogden, Utah. From Ogden, Southern Pacific engines will rush the supplies into San Francisco. The right of way is given to all relief trains over all these connections.

No. 5180 Main is the telephone address of the BOSTON AMERICAN.

Ring up this office if you have not time to notify the express company in your neighborhood.

All express companies will deliver, free, to the train any article you have to send to the people of San Francisco.

All branches of the Salvation Army in and around Boston will receive contributions to the BOSTON AMERICAN and Salvation Army relief train. The Salvation Army and the BOSTON AMERICAN are working in conjunction to relieve the people of the stricken city.

AMERICAN RELIEF FUND:

THE BOSTON AMERICAN fund to relieve the sufferers of the San Francisco earthquake is growing at a rapid rate, through the generosity of the people of Boston, quick to respond to the call for help from the stricken district.

From all sides money is pouring in. Some of the sums are large and some are small, but all are equally welcome for the good work.

The undiminished interest of the public is shown by the variety of sources from which the contributions come. Here is the complete Hearst Relief Fund up to date, with the Boston contributions in detail:

OMAHA FOR MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

OMAHA, May 2.—James C. Dahlman, Democrat, was elected Mayor of Omaha yesterday over Erastus A. Benson. The total vote was Dahlman, 10,247; Benson, 7,455. A full set of city officers, including City Council, was elected.

With the exception of two of the twelve councilmen, the Democrats made a clean sweep on a municipal ownership platform.

MRS. YOUNG WINS SUIT AGAINST HYDE

ALBANY, N. Y., May 2.—The famous Mary S. Young suit, which was the first of the actions against the directors of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, was decided by the Appellate Division to-day in favor of the plaintiff, and against James H. Hyde, former vice-president of the Equitable. The court unitedly holds that the directors are liable for sums in their care. Mrs. Young, who resides in Saratoga, sued as a policyholder to compel the directors to account for moneys alleged to have been wasted, and to restore them to the company's treasury. Senator Brackett was Mrs. Young's attorney.

ELEPHANT AND GIRL BOWL FOR FRISCO

Miss Bessie McCoy, charming soubrette and dancer with "A Yankee Circus on Mars," now being played at the Boston Theatre, and Jennie, the remarkable trick bowling elephant of the organization, compete in a unique contest at the Boylston alleys, No. 120 Boylston street, at 5:30 this afternoon, for the benefit of the San Francisco earthquake and fire sufferers. John C. L. Sheafe, proprietor of the alleys, has generously donated their use to help swell the relief fund. The alleys are open as usual, and those who go there to see the elephant and Miss McCoy bowl have a chance to contribute for the benefit of the homeless thousands of the Golden Gate.

"I am delighted," said Miss McCoy, "to do anything I can to help the poor women and children who are now without a roof to shelter them or food to eat except what comes through the generosity of others. It must be awful—living in tents in the parks, and not knowing what has become of your dearest friends and closest relatives! Just imagine a child searching among 250,000 people to find father or mother! Theatrical people who have passed through the horror write East that it was indescribable. Everybody ought to give something or do something for the people of San Francisco.

"I'm sure it will be worth while to see me bowl against this elephant. She is a wonderfully clever creature and can really bowl. Why, she has beaten Pete Barlow, her trainer. I got acquainted with her at Luna Park, where she was the pet of all the children. She is a real show body. She is always absolutely at home everywhere her trunk is. I'm sure that Jennie is delighted at a chance to do a stunt for 'Frisco sufferers. Mr. Barlow says she really understands what it is all about. He says he told her, and you can't convince him that she doesn't understand everything he says. When she doesn't mind quickly he persists that it is not a failing of her understanding—but just the perversity of her sex."

CALIFORNIA ASKS THE CONGRESS FOR RELIEF MEASURES

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Mr. Perkins of California presented to the Senate to-day a telegram from Governor George C. Pardee, addressed to the California delegation in Congress, asking Congress whether it would not "in California's great present need" pass the following claims, "the justice of which has never been seriously questioned":

Five per cent. public lands claims, aggregating $1,000,000; War of the Rebellion claims of over $4,000,000; Indian War claims of over $600,000. The petition was referred to the committee on claims.

Senator Newlands introduced a resolution in the Senate to-day providing that the ways and means committee of the House and the finance committee of the Senate jointly consider various plans for extending financial aid in the restoration of San Francisco. It asks that the joint committee report the advisability or practicability of the national government furnishing such aid, either by guaranteeing loans at a low rate of interest or by the promotion of the organization of a great financial corporation, state or national. It provides for the appointment by the President of a national commission of men experienced in exposition building.

MAYOR OUSTS LOWELL POLICE BOARD OF 3

LOWELL, May 2.—All three members of the Lowell Police Board, whose resignations were demanded yesterday by Mayor James B. Casey, refused to-day to resign and were summarily removed by the Mayor. The developments at the recent hearings on violations of the excise laws caused the removals.

To clinch the removals, the Mayor appointed two new members immediately. In place of Chairman Frank B. Dow, whose six-year term at a $1,200 salary was to expire next month, the Mayor appointed his private secretary, John R. Shea, a former newspaper man. In place of Commissioner Fisher H. Pearson, who was a Democrat, like Dow, and whose term had two years more to run at a $1,000 salary, he appointed Attorney John W. McEvoy. The place is yet to be filled of Commissioner Le Forrest Beals, the sole Republican member, whose term had four more years to run. The Mayor will not name the Republican member to-day.

Ex-Chairman Dow says that, while it would not be of much advantage for him to fight the removal, as his term had only a month to run, still he may make a contest. Pearson and Beals both declare they will contest the removals.

LIQUID

Simply to please friends of my old liquid form of Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy, you can now get either the tablet form, or the liquid. I changed from the liquid to the tablets, simply to satisfy a large contingent, who believed, and quite correctly, that a tablet is more convenient to carry and to take. But thousands have written me since August, 1904, when the change was made, vigorously protesting. They have plead unceasingly for Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy "liquid form." And finally, to fully satisfy all, I have at last granted the request. Both tablets and liquid can now be had from your Druggist. He may be out of the liquid remedy, but can easily secure it for you. Show him this announcement. The contentment that will now naturally exist because of the change, will in itself prove gratifying to me as well. Racine, Wis., 4-29-1906. C. I. Shoop, M. D.

Will sister's appeal or police order for arrest cause return of Harvard man accused of wife murder?

In Spite of Denial of Attorney Pevey, Authorities Believe He and Young Woman Know Whereabouts of the Missing Man.

cago last night, return or send a statement of her knowledge of the case.

RESULT OF CONFERENCE.

The order for the inquest is supposed to be the result of a long conference last Saturday between Judge Almy, District Attorney Sanderson, Medical Examiner Swan and Chief Inspector Hurley. At the time the conferrees refused to state the object of the conference, but it is now believed that it was for the purpose of inducing Judge Almy to order an inquest.

In spite of the denial made by Attorney Gilbert A. A. Pevey of Cambridge that Miss Bertha Muenter, who left for Chicago last night, had gone to meet her brother, Mr. Pevey's confident manner in speaking about the case tends to confirm the belief of the police that both he and Miss Muenter know the present whereabouts of the missing man.

The Chicago police and those of the Western cities through which she will pass have been asked to watch Miss Muenter, and she will be under constant surveillance. Should she leave Chicago she will be followed, as the police fully expect she will attempt to join her brother. A private agency man is shadowing her from New York. He is in the pay of the New York Life Insurance Company.

Mr. Pevey told a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day that Miss Muenter had left Boston simply because of the notoriety that has been forced upon her here.

"Had she been left alone," he said, "she would have remained two or three days longer. She does not know where her brother is and has not gone to meet him. Her departure was not a flight, and there was nothing secret about it.

"As soon as we find Muenter, or any trace of him, we will communicate with the police, and Muenter will give himself up. He is frightened at the charges made against him. Who wouldn't be?"

TO ANALYZE FOOD.

Mr. Pevey spoke of Muenter's feelings with the assurance of one who knew, although he denied that he knew the whereabouts of the man.

"The flat in which the Muenters lived will be given up," he continued, "and that portion of the furniture which belongs to Mr. Muenter will be shipped to Chicago."

When asked about the analysis of the food and other articles taken from the house, Mr. Pevey said:

"I have arranged with a chemist to be present at the analysis which Professor Whitney is to make. He will represent Mr. Muenter. He probably has arranged with Professor Whitney as to the time of the analysis, and I think it will be made to-day.

"I don't know just what will be analysed; probably whatever articles the police took from the house. I have not been able to find any evidence of Muenter's guilt, and I believe him entirely innocent. I do not think the analysis will bring out any evidence against him.

As the police had been shadowing her since her arrival Sunday, in the hope of locating her missing brother by her movements, their chagrin was deepened by the belief that she has received news of Professor Muenter's whereabouts and has gone to join him.

TRY TO KEEP IN TOUCH WITH HER

Immediately they learned of her departure they kept the wires humming with messages to all the cities through which she might pass, asking that all trains be searched and that the Cambridge police be kept in touch with her movements. They are powerless to bring her back to Cambridge under present conditions, but do not wish to lose track of her.

Miss Muenter's hasty exit from Cambridge is in keeping with her conduct toward the police since she arrived. She has baffled the authorities at every turn, declining to impart any information that would assist them in the slightest manner in solving the death mystery of Mrs. Muenter.

Although she has been under constant surveillance since her arrival Sunday, she eluded the officers and was aboard a Western train at the South station before they had an intimation that she was slipping through their fingers.

Miss Muenter has been staying at the home of Mrs. Bertha Derick, No. 80 Garfield street, Cambridge. She spent most of yesterday in preparing the furniture in the Muenter home for removal to Chicago. About 7 o'clock last evening a hurry call was telephoned to a livery stable for a closed carriage to be sent to Mrs. Derick's home.

STUDENT HURRIES CARRIAGE.

Before the stablemen had time to hitch up, Frank Bryant, the student friend of the Muenters, rushed into the shed and, jumping into the carriage, told the driver to hurry to No. 80 Garfield street. Arriving at the house Bryant entered and immediately issued therefrom accompanied by Miss Muenter. They were driven rapidly to Boston, where Miss Muenter caught the 8 o'clock train for Chicago.

With Miss Muenter's departure all that the Cambridge police have left on which to work are the contents of the dead woman's stomach, a small supply of foodstuffs which have been removed from the Muenter residence and the promise from Miss Muenter and her attorney, G. A. A. Pevey, that they would do everything in their power to induce Erich Muenter to return to their city and face the charges which have been made against him.

MUENTER AD. QUESTIONED.

After last night's unexpected developments the police expressed the belief that they had been fooled to a very great extent by Muenter's friends, and steps were at once taken to ascertain whether or not the alleged advertisement for the return of Muenter had been published in any paper.

Bryant, the ex-lodger, went to the Cambridge postoffice late yesterday afternoon and there left word that in the future all mail addressed to any of the Muenters should be forwarded to Miss Muenter in Chicago.

No report had been received at police headquarters in Cambridge this morning in response to the telegrams asking that Miss Muenter be located.

SHARP BREAK IN STOCKS DEMORALIZES MARKET

BEARS MORE ACTIVE THAN AT ANY TIME SINCE EARTHQUAKE—CONDITIONS PANICKY.

In the severest break which the stock market has suffered for months, prices in Wall Street fell again to-day all the way from 3 to 20 points. Practically all the stocks were hammered fiercely, and conditions bordering on a panic prevailed amidst the wildest activity.

The break has lasted steadily since last Thursday, excepting a small recovery on Monday. The entire market to-day was in a demoralized condition. The most pessimistic calamity-shouter would not have thought of predicting such a near approach to a financial cataclysm as has finally followed the earthquake.

The conversion of securities into cash by the insurance companies and others who need to send money to San Francisco, and the seizing of the opportunity to sell short by professional operators, has led to a state of affairs in which stocks are being thrown over at almost unprecedented rate. Unless some support is forthcoming, a veritable panic, one of the worst sort, seems inevitable.

Much interests centered in the stocks in which Standard Oil interests are prominent, in view of the belief that Commissioner Garfield would render his report regarding his investigation of the oil trust this week.

The Boston market was weak in sympathy with the decline in New York, and coppers lost two or three points each. Following is a list of the stocks which suffered worst in New York to-day:

"TWO-DOLLAR" MAN ON NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE FAILS

NEW YORK, May 2.—Charles W. Saacke this afternoon announced his suspension on the New York Stock Exchange. It was a small feature. He was regarded as a "two-dollar" broker on the floor.

TOWN TREASURER 40 YEARS.

Parker Litchfield, for more than forty years treasurer of Medford, celebrated his eightieth birthday at his home on Governor's avenue, Medford, last evening. Fully 500 friends were present.

THEFT CHARGE PROBED BY POLICE BOARD

Despite the fact that Chairman Charles H. Cole, Jr., of the police board declared that the charge that sums of money had been stolen from policemen's clothes at various station houses was ridiculous, the board to-day began an investigation of the complaint of several Station 1 policemen, which resulted in a demand from District Attorney Moran that the matter be investigated.

The charge grew out of the report that a woman arrested for drunkenness and held all night in Station 1 and the Somerset street jail had been robbed of her hat and overskirt and jacket.

Mr. Moran in his demand for the investigation says that officers have been victims of systematic robberies for many months. He cites one case in which Patrolman Joel Fass was relieved of $150 that was in his locker.

Chairman Cole said to-day that a report had been received from Captain Kimball and several patrolmen of the Hanover street station regarding the theft of money from the guardroom. The matter is being investigated by the Police Board.

SUBWAY CAUSES BARGAIN SALE

The plans for the construction of the lower Washington street section of the new subway call for the use of part of the premises at the corner of Washington and Hanover streets, now occupied by F. Gray & Co., the clothiers. The firm has been notified of this encroachment by the Rapid Transit Commission. In preparation of the invasion of subway workmen the firm will make certain shifts in its stock, causing a sacrifice sale of a quarter-million dollars worth of men's, youths' and boys' clothing.

This Will Interest You If You Use Whiskey

The user of whiskey invariably wants the best quality obtainable for the smallest price possible; by this we do not mean that quality shall be sacrificed in order to obtain the price desired, but rather that the quality of the whiskey shall be the very finest distilled at a price within the reach of everyone.

This last is just what we are doing every day—we offer you, through our mail order plan of selling, a whiskey of superior quality at a price that saves you half what you usually pay the retailer for whiskey of an inferior grade.

In Callahan Home Whiskey you get more actual value and a greater amount of really genuine satisfaction than in any other whiskey on the market to-day at double the price. Cleanliness and honesty are the first considerations in the distilling of Callahan Home Whiskey. Every detail in the process of its production, from the selection of the grain till it reaches the public, is treated with the greatest care, thus insuring a most perfect whiskey, and our way of selling enables you to purchase this superior whiskey at a price with which the local retailer cannot possibly hope to compete, and then, we ask you to sample it at our expense. Will the retailer give you a full quart to try, and give you a whiskey worth $1.50 for 75 cents? It's worth your while to read our broad offer and guarantee of satisfaction.

OUR SPECIAL OFFER.

Send us $3 for four (4) full quarts of Callahan Home Whiskey, Rye or Bourbon, and we will promptly ship the goods to any point in New England, express charges prepaid. Sample a bottle, and if not thoroughly satisfied with your purchase, return the case to us, at our expense, and your $3 will be returned without argument or delay.

We mean exactly what we state. The entire risk is ours. You have no expense if we do not please you.

Why We Grow

IN a nutshell, all you want to know, all you want to see, is just values, and no frills. Value is nowadays labelled on so many counterfeits that some buyers don't realize how good genuine value is until they strike the imitation, and then—Oh, my! The principles upon which our great business was founded demand the giving of something better for something less—that's why we grow.

Spring Suits

We can't help laying stress on our $15.00 line of suits. It always was our stronghold and this season you will find it better than ever. Close fitting collars, well padded shoulders, clean cut lapels mark these suits as superior. 15.00

Spring Overcoats

Led by the New French Frock, our overcoat display fairly outshines all others; also the favorite covert top coat, in all the newest shades. Our hand tailoring moulds the very life shape into our garments built by brainy tailors. 15.00

67 CONDEMNED AS RESULT OF PARIS RIOTS

Police Reinforcements Called to Prevent More Disorders Among Striking Printers.

LIEUTENANT IS CASHIERED

PARIS, May 2.—M. Marie, the secretary of the Printers' Union, who was arrested yesterday after declaring in a speech at the Labor Exchange, that, "We must have Prefect of Police Lepine's skin," was placed on trial to-day and was condemned to serve four months' imprisonment.

Sixty-seven persons, who were arrested during the disorders yesterday, were also placed on trial and condemned to serve sentences varying from two weeks to three months' imprisonment.

Reinforcements of police have been called to the Place de la Republique, the scene of considerable rioting yesterday, to prevent disorders when a meeting of the striking printers now proceeding breaks up.

Lieutenant Tisserand de Lange, who pronounced a revolutionary harangue at the Labor Exchange yesterday, has been cashiered from the army.

A soldier who was lined up with his regiment before the Tivoli Vauxhall dashed his arms to the ground and left the ranks, saying, "I, too, am a Socialist, and I refuse to march against the populace." He was immediately arrested.

The authorities let the crowds which they had diverted from labor headquarters on the Place de la Republique assemble at a short distance from that storm centre, overlooking or despising some heaps of stones on the street. Instantly arming itself with these stones, the mob rushed on the police line, bombarding it. The police broke for an instant, and a gang, yelling, "Death to the Republican Guards," cut off a dozen of them from the main body.

COSTLY GIFTS FOR DAUGHTER OF MRS. SIEGEL

Special Cable to Boston American.

LONDON, May 2.—Following out the wish of the bride, the list of wedding presents made to Miss Georgine Wilde, daughter of Mrs. Henry Siegel of New York, and bride of Count Carlo Dentice di Frasso, has just been made public.

The wedding took place at the Brompton Oratory, but the countess requested that the gift catalogue be held back until she had departed on her honeymoon.

It is now known that the wedding presents included the following: From the bridegroom, a string of pearls, a diamond collar, a set of emeralds and diamonds, and a diamond ring symbolical of the Trinity; from Prince Dentice di Frasso three thoroughbred hunters; the Count and Countess Schonborn-Buchheim, a diamond tiara; Miss Dorothy Wilde and Miss Julia Siegel, a ruby and diamond bracelet; Mr. Anstruther-Thomson, enamel medallion and silver-mounted prayer book; Viscountess Galway, a volume of her own poems; Sir Francis Montefiore, antique enamel casket; Sir Charles and Lady Wyndham, fan of old rose point lace with carved mother-of-pearl sticks; James Stillman of New York, silver flower basket; Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Jarvis, silver coffee set; the Princess de Croy, fan painted with Watteau designs; and the Hon. George Monckton-Arundel, leather traveling pillow.

Father Bernard Vaughan, brother of the late Cardinal, officiated, and, after the placing of the ring, he made an address in which he said that his first wish to the bride and bridegroom was that they would look back upon their wedding day with even more joy and thankfulness than they had looked forward to it.

He had every reason to believe they had prepared themselves for the sacred and sacramental state of life upon which they had now entered in the surest way to secure that everlasting blessing.

They had not regarded matrimony as something like a lottery, as a mere venture, or at best as a civil contract only, for which settlements, trousseau and wedding gifts were the highest preparation. They both had looked upon it as a most solemn and sacred state in which no hand but the hand of death could sever them.

Married life was what those entering upon it chose to make it.

If the stage which held up the mirror to nature, if society journals and the divorce court, to which nothing was secret or sacred, too often revealed shameless stories of broken pledges and broken vows, the reason was not far to seek.

It was because, in pledging their troth, the wedded pair really had not meant what they said. They had wrecked their own lives in defiance of God.

"NO BILL" IN MATTIE HACKETT MURDER CASE

Special to the Boston American.

AUGUSTA, Me., May 2.—The Grand Jury of Kennebec County to-day returned "no bill" in the investigation of the murder of Mattie Hackett, which took place at Readfield last Summer.

The evidence that has been gathered by the county officials and special detectives employed for the purpose was presented to the Grand Jury by County Attorney Leigh.

In connection with the strangling to death of the pretty girl with a cord the name of Mrs. Elsie Hobbs Raymond was mentioned from the first. Bert Raymond, the husband of the woman, was called as a witness before the grand jury, but his wife was not asked to tell what she knows, if anything, about the case.

Girl Choked to Death.

It was claimed by the County authorities that Mrs. Raymond was jealous of Miss Hackett because her husband had driven the girl from Readfield to her home, which is in the country. One evening Miss Hackett was alone in the house washing the supper dishes when she was called out into the road.

Mr. Hackett, her father, and a man named Alford Johnson, who had stopped to remain over night, heard a scream down the road, and going to the spot, found the girl apparently dead.

After Miss Hackett had been carried to the house it was found that a cord had been tied tightly about the girl's neck and that she had been choked to death.

On the evening of the murder Mrs. Raymond was absent from her home about three hours. She said that she was sitting under an apple tree in the yard because she had had some words with her husband about money matters.

At the time of the murder Mrs. Raymond was about to become a mother. Her baby was born about a month later. She always stoutly maintained her innocence.

Mrs. Raymond was seen to-day at her home at Readfield by a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN. She was told of the result of the Grand Jury investigation.

"I am glad this thing is over," said Mrs. Raymond. "I was anxious for the Grand Jury to take the matter up, so that my name might be cleared. I am not surprised at the result. I knew there would be no bill.

"If the mystery of Mattie Hackett's death is ever cleared, the authorities will have to work in another direction than they have been working since the girl died. As I have always said, I know nothing of how the girl came to her death."

WOMAN DYING FROM BURNS IN LIGHTING FIRE

Despite the frenzied efforts of her husband to save her, Mrs. William E. Fuller, wife of a Newton policeman, was fatally burned while trying to start a fire with kerosene oil to-day, and her death is expected at any moment.

Patrolman Fuller, with his wife and two children, lived at No. 107 Central avenue, Newtonville. Mr. Fuller was on duty until 1 o'clock this morning, and at 8 o'clock his wife began to get breakfast. The fire did not burn well, and she threw on some oil. In an instant she was wrapped in flames.

She screamed with agony, and her husband, who was in bed, rushed to the kitchen. His wife, a living pillar of fire, ran towards him. Quickly he seized a large rug and threw it about her, smothering the flames. Rapidly as he worked, it was too late. When Dr. Baker, who was summoned, reached the house he saw at once that there was no help for the woman.

He did what he could to make her comfortable, but said that she could not live through the day. Her clothes were practically burned off, and she was terribly burned about the face, arms and body.

Fuller himself was painfully injured, being burned about the face and hands.

DYING IN TURKISH BATH.

In a dying condition, Elmer Westfield of Piedmont, W. Va., was taken from a Turkish bath in Lundin's bath rooms at No. 176 Tremont street at 4:30 this morning. Alcoholism is given as the primary cause of the man's condition.

"THE GREAT AUTO CHASE."

By Thompson Peel.

CHAPTER XVIII.
Wolf and Lamb.

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner.

CULBERSON crossed to Miss Pierce, and laid his hand roughly on her shoulder. She shrank a little, then there came a quick revulsion of feeling and she threw back her head defiantly.

"Now listen to me, Kate Sargent," he said. "I hate to use the old name, but I want you to understand that you must do as I tell you. I have no wish to drag up days that are past, when the name of the beautiful Miss Sargent was a subject for idle gossip, nor yet to recall the scene in court, when——"

"You coward!" she exclaimed. Her voice was low and tense. "And you know that I was only the innocent victim of you and your gang of accomplices. That horror is too vividly impressed on my mind for me to ever forget it. I loved you in those days, and, knowing my love, you relied upon my silence. I did not betray you, and I suffered the penalty."

Mutely in her eyes there lay the plea for mercy which her lips did not frame.

"How have you repaid me?" she went on, her voice still vibrant with repressed emotion. "When I was once again a free woman I set to work to retrieve the past. I built up a good business and was prosperous and happy. Then you found me out. What has my life been since? I have been blackmailed, terrorized, and all for what? Why do I stand it?"

Culberson smiled down at her sneeringly and stroked his blonde mustache with slim, aristocratic fingers.

"Because, my dear, you set such value upon the fair name of Pierce that you dare not run the risk of having it associated with Kate Sargent. Your business is not strong enough for that, Kate. If aristocratic parents knew that their daughters were being educated by a notorious ex-convict——" A wave of his hands finished the sentence.

"Why should I not denounce you as Leonard Simms?" she demanded.

He turned a startled glance upon her. It lingered for an instant, and then he smiled again, the self-satisfied smile which she hated.

"Who would believe you?" he asked. "How could you prove that Williard Culberson and Leonard Simms are the same, except by your own statement—the word of an ex-convict?"

"I can prove it by Joe Morgan and his daughter, Sally."

She arose and faced him boldly; he recoiled with a hoarse exclamation.

"Ah! That is something that has escaped your excellent memory, is it?" she asked, cuttingly.

"How do you know Joe Morgan?" he demanded, fiercely. "Where have you met him?"

"I knew him long before I ever fell into your snares," she replied. "I knew him in days that were bright and happy. And he loved me. After long years I have met him again, just the simple, true man that he always was. And to talk to someone who knew me only in my happy days was a breath of new life to me."

"I suppose," he sneered, "that you are contemplating turning the honest love of Joe Morgan into lasting benefits for yourself—a happy marriage?"

"No, no," she exclaimed, bitterly. "That can never be. I would never marry him unless he knew of my misfortunes, and I had rather die than have him know and lose all respect for me."

There was a pause as Culberson stood and drummed with his slender fingers on a table.

"How did he come to speak of me?" he asked at last. "That is of Leonard Simms?"

"He told me the story of his daughter and 'The Green Blaze.' He is spending his life trying to find Leonard Simms, and when he does——"

Culberson interrupted her by pointing his forefinger at her threateningly.

"When he does, Kate Sargent," he said tensely, "it will be a bad day for you, so beware."

HANDS LOOKED LIKE RAW BEEF

Terribly Inflamed, and Watery Matter Would Drop from Fingers—Had Doctor All Winter, But Grew Worse All the Time.

CURED BY CUTICURA AT EXPENSE OF $3.75

"My hands broke out with eczema. One of the best physicians in this section treated me all winter till the next spring, but I grew worse all the time. I tried everything I could hear of. At last in May my husband happened to be in the store and saw the Cuticura Remedies, and as a last resort bought them, Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent. I commenced taking them, and when I had used three bottles of the Resolvent and the Soap and Ointment to go with it, I was cured.

"My hands were so bad and inflamed they were purple and raw as meat, and when I held them down, watery matter would drop off the fingers. I used the Soap to bathe them in and applied the Ointment spread on linen cloths, in which I did them up. I did not have the doctor when I was taking Cuticura, but I began taking it in May, and before cold weather my hands were entirely healed. You may use this any way you please, and I hope it will help other sufferers as it did me. (signed) Mrs. Abbie A. Saultes, West Danville, Vt., April 19, 1905."

SHALL GORKY BE ALLOWED TO SPEAK IN BOSTON HALL?

Bostonians Discuss Question Raised by His Travelling With Woman Not His Wife.

Ministers Say "No"; His Admirers Declare He Will Talk on the Common if Necessary.

> MAXIM GORKY, REVOLUTIONIST
>
> Maxim Gorky, the Russian Socialist and revolutionist, who arrives in Boston to-morrow, is an exile.
>
> He arrived in New York with Mme. Andreieva, who is not his wife, but who was introduced as "Mrs. Gorky," and was cordially received and feted by a number of noted persons.
>
> After the truth about Mme. Andreieva was discovered he was refused accommodations at many New York hotels and lived among his friends, the Socialists, there.
>
> Since it was announced that he would speak in Boston he has been refused the use of Tremont Temple and Symphony Hall.
>
> The Socialists of this city declare he will speak here, even if his auditorium is an open lot.

Shall Maxim Gorky, the Russian novelist and revolutionist, be allowed to speak in Boston?

The argument is advanced that he should not be, on the ground that he is traveling and living with a woman not his wife.

T. W. HIGGINSON.

Colonel Thomas Wentworth Higginson—I haven't looked into the matter much, but from what I have read, he ought to be allowed to speak here. Much depends upon the man himself. I must be careful of what I speak for all the knowledge of the matter I have is what I have learned through the newspapers. Personally, I should wish that he might be allowed to speak.

REV. FATHER GASSON.

The Rev. Fr. Thomas I. Gasson of Boston College: If Gorky is really travelling with a woman who is not his wife, the people of Boston should have character enough not to sanction by their presence one whose life is subversive of the sanctity of the home.

DR. GEORGE W. GALVIN.

Dr. George W. Galvin—If Mayor Fitzgerald refuses a city license for Maxim Gorky to speak in Symphony Hall Sunday night a meeting will be held somewhere in the city, even if the Gorky sympathizers have to hold forth on Boston Common. The first Mrs. Gorky, from whom Gorky separated, is married in Russia to a second husband. Gorky was legally married in Finland to Mme. Andreieva. It is an outrage to hold up the matter in this way.

REV. DR. GEORGE A. GORDON.

Rev. Dr. George A. Gordon, pastor of the New Old South Church—I am not opposed to Gorky's speaking in Boston. Freedom of public speech is a part of modern civilization. But I am opposed to his appearing in Symphony Hall or Tremont Temple. I would not want him in my church. I would not want any man whose character is supposed to be disreputable addressing my parishioners.

DR. ANTOINETTE KONIKOW.

Dr. Antoinette Konikow, Russian Socialist—I am amazed when I think that there is the slightest doubt of Gorky's getting a hearing place, this man who has made such sacrifices for real liberty. We supposed it was settled that Tremont Temple was available until we heard from the Rev. Mr. Henson, whose name will be forgotten when Gorky's is ringing through the ages. If Mayor Fitzgerald refuses us this right it will show that free speech does not exist here. But Gorky will speak, if in the street.

REV. FRANCIS J. BUTLER.

Rev. Francis J. Butler, rector of St. Leo's Roman Catholic Church—I am entirely opposed to giving any man travelling as Gorky is a hearing on such a question and upon such doctrines as he espouses in a community such as Boston.

> If Mayor Fitzgerald refuses a city license for Maxim Gorky to speak in Symphony Hall, Sunday night, a meeting will be held somewhere in the city.—Dr. Geo. W. Galvin.

> I am amazed to think that there is the slightest doubt of Gorky's getting a hearing place, this man who has made such sacrifices for real liberty.—Dr. Antoinette Konikow.

Participate in Our First
Great May Sale of Laces

This is the first of what will be an annual event that all New England will look forward to because it furnishes lace values that make ordinary advertised bargain prices appear like excessive charges. Simpson-Crawford Co., one of Siegel's New York stores, has held this sale every May for years and thousands wait for it to stock up for all summer requirements. Boston will do the same from this time forward. Sale continues all day Thursday.

It is not the slightest exaggeration to assert that we offer laces, fresh, crisp and new, from St. Gall, Plauen and Paris that represent the very latest ideas at prices lower than you have ever seen in Boston. Think of $20,000 worth of newest laces, including:

Beautiful white Venise and Irish laces, dainty batiste in combination with Irish lace, matched sets of Baby Irish laces, garlands and galloons in batiste, Venise, Irish lace effects, lace medallions in Venise and batiste, rich Irish lace and batiste bands, and, in fact, every new and desirable lace produced this year. EUROPEAN TOUR ELECTION

WORKING FOR PLACE IN WINNING LISTS

TEACHERS OUTSIDE PRIZE NUMBERS SEEK ADVANTAGE OF POSITION NEAR THE TOP.

The contest for positions in the "winning list" has become very active among those teachers outside the prizes in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN European Tour Election.

Those teachers who are non-winners as election stands to-day are working hard with plans to displace the candidates who hold the coveted places at the top.

May parties and entertainments of various kinds are being held all over New England to aid the candidacy of popular candidates for the Forty Summer Tours in the Old World and the $1,000 in cash prizes offered by the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN for the most popular women instructors.

The Boston list showed great activity among those outside the winning number. Miss Madeline Driscoll of Roxbury went up two numbers into position of first at the door of the "winning list." Miss Mary Barnett followed into second place, passing above Miss Mary T. Ronan. Miss Sophie G. Thayer passed Miss Grace F. Gardner, and Miss Elsie B. Martin went above Miss Susan B. McDonald.

Among the Boston teachers who stand in position to win European tours who gained points in the standing yesterday were Miss Mary W. Bonython and Miss Elizabeth Rogers, each of whom went over another teacher.

NEW BUILDING FOR HARVARD

Harvard University is to have a new law school building, to be an annex to the present fine structure. By the terms of the contract just awarded, the new building must be completed and all ready for occupancy on July 1, 1907. Its cost will be, approximately, $350,000.

The Harvard Law School is now as large as many entire colleges in other parts of the country, which are considered large. In spite of the high standard of requirements for admission, the law school is overcrowded, and the massive stone building is inadequate for the increasing classes.

MAY PARTY FOR PARISH BENEFIT

A May party in Bethesda Hall, South Boston, last night, for the benefit of the parish of the Lady of the Rosary Church, was one of the prettiest social gatherings held in that section since Lent. It was attended by several hundred people, young and old, and the program of the evening was delightful. The affair was a big success socially, and will net quite a sum financially. Joseph P. Kelley was in charge of the floor and exercises, assisted by Mark Clougherty, F. H. Hughes, and a [illegible] aids.

ROOSEVELTS FEAST NEWSIES

NEW YORK, May 2.—Mrs. Douglas Robinson, President Roosevelt's sister, turned waitress at the newsboys' dinner given at the Newsboys' Home, No. 225 West Twenty-fifth street, last night. The feast was started by the father of President Roosevelt, the late Theodore Roosevelt, twenty-five years ago.

When May day comes around there is not a newsboy in all New York, who is not at liberty to enjoy the feast. Mrs. Robinson showed a personal interest in every boy and tried not to miss one of them while she played waitress. She gave them turkey first, with every trimming, and then came the ice cream.

ONE KISS UPSETS A STATE BUT IT CAN'T DEFEAT HOCH

"I was moved to kiss her by an impulse which I could not resist. I was sorry as soon as I had done it."—Gov. Hoch of Kansas.

MRS W·E·STANLEY

HOCH COULDN'T RESIST KISSING HER

Convention Expected to Renominate Governor in Spite of Stanley Incident.

TOPEKA, Kan., May 2.—When the Republican State convention convened to-day it became apparent that Governor Hoch would be nominated, despite the kissing episode which has upset the State.

Seventy-five of the 105 counties in the State had instructed their delegates for Hoch. In but few of these was a movement made to secure a change in the vote. The men of the State seemed to feel that the Governor's excuse for having kissed Mrs. Stanley was a reasonable one. The Governor says:

"I was affected by an irresistible impulse. I was sorry as soon as I had done it. I knew I would regret it all of my life."

As Mrs. Stanley is a pretty woman there are those who think they understand this feeling. To those who do not the argument has been made that the Governor, as an old-fashioned Methodist, believes in the kiss of brotherly love.

In fact, the entire incident, which threatened to disrupt the Republican party on the eve of a State convention, is reacting in the Governor's favor.

Commotion in State.

Mrs. Stanley, wife of former Governor Stanley, was a member of the Board of Control of State Institutions and recently resigned. She explained that she could no longer remain in office under Governor Hoch's administration, as he had insulted her, and she told a detailed story. It seems that in April of last year she had occasion to go to the executive office on purely State business. Governor Hoch was there alone. Mrs. Stanley was looking particularly well that day. Governor Hoch suddenly put his arm around her waist and kissed her.

When she told the story and it got into print there was commotion throughout the State. Mrs. Hoch is said to have been a participant in a rather stormy scene with the Governor. Coming on the eve of a convention opinions were divided as to whether it was a political canard. This idea vanished when the Governor admitted the incident, but excused it by the "irresistible impulse" explanation.

Will Be More Careful.

Sentiment, which was at first quite strongly against the Governor, began to change as soon as it became known that the Governor had in his possession a letter from Mrs. Stanley of a date less than three months ago, urging him and his wife to run down to Wichita to spend Sunday with the Stanleys. His friends point out that if she had regarded his kiss as a very deadly insult, she would have hardly invited him to visit her more than nine months afterward.

The Governor has refused to give out this or any other correspondence, but those close to him say they have seen the letter, and the reaction of the past twenty-four hours is the result.

It is safe to say that Kansas statesmen will be more careful in the future regarding their impulses to kiss pretty women. In the mean time, the Republican managers feel that they have come very well through this crisis.

To-day's convention was expected to nominate W. J. Fitzgerald, reputed "railroad candidate," for Lieutenant-Governor, although the anti-railroad forces are making a strong fight to name Ansel R. Clark. The Clark faction has a platform declaring for two-cent passenger fares and against all railroad passes.

TO "MAKE 'FRISCO FAMOUS."

CHICAGO, May 2.—D. H. Burnham, the Chicago arhitect who has been invited to help "make Frisco famous," has accepted the task, wiring ex-Mayor James D. Phelan that he would be in San Francisco before the 15th of the month.

MGR. O'CONNELL GETS WELCOME

Coadjutor Archbishop William H. O'Connell was welcomed last night by the faculty, students and graduates of his alma mater, Boston College, in the college hall in James street. There were about 1,200 present. Addresses were made by Rev. William F. Gannon, president of the college, as well as by several of the alumni. The archbishop made a graceful reply.

Judge Beer By Its True Worth

Progressive Men and Women Consider It a Means to National Temperance.

We have recently published a number of articles on the food value of beer, the importance of the brewing industries as a factor in our national wealth, our national revenues, and the use of beer itself as a means of temperance and sobriety.

We believe that sooner or later beer will be recognized at its true worth, as a food beverage of splendid tonic effect and high nourishing value. Noted men and women of this country are already alive to the situation and besides Miss Phoebe Cousins and Dr. Joseph Feisler of Northwestern University, many others of note give their endorsement to beer as a means to national temperance.

Miss Cousins, for a quarter of a century the most eminent woman suffrage advocate in the West, said in a recent interview: "There never will be a law that will compel prohibition, and the sensible thing for the Women's Christian Temperance Union to do is to aid in the substitution of mild, nourishing drinks like beer, which seldom produce drunkenness. A prominent army officer who served in the Southwest, operated canteens at three different posts. He made the canteens so acceptable to the soldiers, who found beer satisfying their demands, that he actually ran all the low dives of the surrounding neighborhood out of business."

Pabst Beer meets all the demands for a mild, healthful, refreshing beverage such as Miss Cousins suggests. It is made of the exclusive Pabst eight-day malt, choicest hops and pure water. Eight-day malt, which is the only perfect malt, gives Pabst Beer its superior food value and richness. Strong in nourishment the body requires, it is refreshing and satisfying.

Perfect in age, purity and strength, absolutely clean and containing only three and one-half per cent. of alcohol, Pabst Beer is the ideal temperance beverage. No other is so healthful.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, Boston, May 2.—Collins and his band of Pilgrims are home again for a long season on their favorite links. Beginning to-day with the Washington Club, there is a series of four games, followed by four with the Athletics, champions of the American League. Then come the Western clubs, the last game with the invaders being on June 2. Then the Pilgrims go West for their first trip.

It was a fine welcome the fans gave Captain Jim and his benchmen. Although the weather was a trifle raw for the national game, there was a big crowd on hand when play began.

The Washington Club for the past two seasons has been making it mighty interesting for the former world champions. Last year Jake Stahl's men put it all over the Bostons, and it was not until the season was well advanced that the Pilgrims were able to even up matters. This year the Washingtons have won two out of the three games played, the fourth contest being postponed on account of cold weather.

Collins says that his men are now in good shape to tackle all comers. The boys have been batting well, except in the game at New York yesterday, and none of them has any fear of the Washington pitchers. The Bostons are especially anxious to get another whack at Falkenburg, who has made monkeys of them on two occasions in the past two years.

THE GAME.

FIRST INNING.

Nill started off with a single to right. Schafly tried to sacrifice, but Collins tossed his grounder to Parent, forcing Nill at second. Hickman dumped a Texas leaguer in centre field. Cross popped a fly to Collins. Anderson's dinky fly fell safe in short centrefield, and Schafly scored on it, Hickman going to third. Anderson made a bluff to steal, but turned back, and Hickman raced for home. Graham let Grim's throw get by him, and Hickman crossed the plate, Anderson getting second on the play. Stahl lined to Ferris. TWO RUNS.

Four wide ones in succession gave Sel a pass. Collins rolled one to Schafly and Selbach was forced at second. Collins hit to Stahl, who threw it to Nill, forcing Collins. Parent hit weakly to Patten and was tossed out. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

Jones fanned. Young tossed out Heydon. Ferris made a great backward catch of Patten's pop fly. NO RUNS.

Freeman lined a single to right. Grimshaw, who leads the team in batting, was wildly cheered when he stepped to the plate. Grim fanned, but Freeman stole second on th third strik. Ferris popped a fly to Cross. Graham fanned. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

Nill lined a single to left. Schafly fanned, but Nill stole second on the third strike. Ferris tossed out Hickman, Nill going to third. Cross fanned. NO RUNS.

Cross threw out Young at first. Selbach was put out by the same route. Collins fouled to Heydon. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING.

Anderson popped to Parent. Stahl fanned. Jones popped a measley fly to short centre. Parent, Ferris and Stahl all ran for it, leaving second base uncovered, and as the fly fell safe Jones got two bases on the hit. Ferris threw out Heydon. NO RUNS.

Anderson got Chick Stahl's fly after a sharp run. Parent dumped a bunt in front of the plate. Patten had no chance to get him, but threw the ball just the same. It was a wild chuck and Freddie easily made second on it. Freeman walked. Grimshaw smashed a hot one, which Schafly was unable to hold, and the bases were full. Ferris fouled to Jake Stahl. Graham walked, forcing Parent across the plate. Young rapped to Nill, who threw to Schafly, forcing Graham. ONE RUN.

FIFTH INNING.

Ferris tossed out Patten. Nill made his third hit this time, putting it within three feet of Cy Young. Nill made a clean steal of second. Schafly flied to Stahl. Hickman struck out. NO RUNS.

Selbach flied to Anderson. Collins singled to centre field. Schafly threw out Stahl. Parent flied to Jones. NO RUNS.

Attendance—200.

SOUTH END GROUNDS, Boston, May 2.—With absolutely the best baseball attraction in the world—the New York Nationals, champions of the world—the team owned by Soden and Conant have been playing to a handful of spectators, and this with fine baseball weather on tap.

To-day there is a conflict with the American League team, both the South End and the Huntington avenue grounds being busy, and the crowd that saw the National League game was ridiculous in point of numbers.

This, of course, is due to the parsimonious management of the Boston National League Club affairs in years past, and they are reaping the reward of that kind of management.

THE GAME.

FIRST INNING.

Marshal tripled to centre field fence. Browne went out, Maroney to Tenney. Donlin fouled out to Needham. Bridwell tossed out Bowerman. NO RUNS.

Bridewell was safe on a bad bounder to Dahlen. Tenney went out on strikes. Dolan went out on a fly to Bowerman. Howard tripled to centre field, scoring Bridewell. Brain was safe on Devlin's error and Howard scored. Bates was safe on Bowerman's fumble. Brain was out on a squeeze play, at the plate, McGinnity to Marshall. TWO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

Mertes walked. Dahlen walked. Howard made a sensational catch off Devlin. Gilbert was hit by a pitched ball, filling the bases. McGinnity was hit by a pitched ball, forcing Mertes in with a run. Marshall was called out on strikes. Browne flied to Howard. ONE RUN.

Strobel fanned. Needham sent a long fly to Donlin. Maroney fanned. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

Donlin scratched a hit. Bowerman was hit and walked. Mertes flied to Dolan. Dahlen popped out to Tenney. Devlin raised a fly for Strobel. NO RUNS.

Bridwell fanned. Tenney flied to Mertes. Dahlen tossed Dolan out. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING.

Gilbert singled to right, over Tenney's head. McGinnity sacrificed, Brain to Tenney. Marshall fanned. Strobel threw Browne out. NO RUNS.

McGinnity tossed Howard out. Brain singled to centre field. Bates flied to Donlin. Strobel went out, Gilbert to Bowerman. NO RUNS.

FIFTH INNING.

Bridwell took Donlin's line drive. Bridewell ran back and took Bowerman's pop. Brain tossed Mertes out. NO RUNS.

Needham fouled to Marshall. Maroney fanned. McGinnity shut Bridwell off at first. NO RUNS.

SIXTH INNING.

GEORGAS WON STAKE AT NEWMARKET

LONDON, May 2.—Racing was resumed at the famous Newmarket track to-day, this being the first day of the Spring meeting. Society was out in large numbers and the scene was a brilliant one. The principal event on the card was the race for the 2,000 guineas, for three-year-olds and upwards. It was won by Georgas, Dame Agenta was second and Ramrod finished third. Twelve horses ran.

GAELIC CLUB WILL MEET

A regular meeting of the central council of the Gaelic Athletic Association of Greater Boston will be held in Wells Memorial building, 987 Washington street, to-night. All entries will close at this meeting for the big holiday to be held on Locust street grounds, South Boston, on Memorial Day.

All county and Gaelic athletic cubs wishing to participate in the day's events are requested to send three delegates.

SOLDIERS' FIELD, CAMBRIDGE, May 2.—The Crimson diamond warriors lined up with Amherst in the second game of the season on home grounds.

Hartford was the Harvard selection for the boxwork, as he showed up well on the Southern trip. He was opposed by McRae, the Amherst veteran, and he was ready to repeat his victory of last year, when he won a close game by the score of 4 to 3.

McCall, the freshman "find," was moved up in the batting order, and the same team that faced Dartmouth went against Amherst.

THE GAME.

FIRST INNING.

Wheeler out at first, Harvey to Burr. Palmer fanned. Storke followed suit. NO RUNS.

Leonard flied to Danahey. McCall struck out. Dexter shot a clean single to centre. Shattuck let Stephenson's single go through his legs and Stephenson reached third, Dexter scoring. Burr lined to Beach. ONE RUN.

CORNELL WON OVER DOHERTY

BRIDGEPORT, May 2.—Willie Cornell of Boston outpointed Jeff Doherty of New Haven in a six-round bout at the Columbia Athletic Club. Doherty clinched frequently and was on the defensive throughout. Cornell handled himself very cleverly, and while no decision was rendered, in order to comply with the law, if one had been given it would have been in Cornell's favor.

HORNE PLAYS MAYNARD.

The followers of the New England Class C amateur billard tournament were treated to a surprise at the Hub Billiard Palace, when Reynolds suffered his first defeat at the hands of Pressey by the score of 150 to 132. Horne plays Maynard to-night.

BENEVOLENT WON FIRST AT JAMAICA

Special to the Boston American.

RACE TRACK, Jamaica, May 2.—Secretary W. C. Edwards put on a crackerjack card for the middle day of the week with the much talked-of two-year-old stake, the Greenfield, as the feature to-day, and the daily throng was little reduced in size.

The track was a bit soggy and dead.

The Results.

FIRST RACE—Selling; three-year-olds; Benevolent, 111 (Radtke), 2 to 1 and even, won; Lady of the Forest, 103 (Miller), 6 to 1 and 2 to 1, second; Cinna, 108 (O'Neil), 12 to 1 and 5 to 1, third. Time, 1:14. Rye, Caprice, G. L. M., Cassandra, St. Estephe, Listless, Melbourne, Nominee, Curly Jim, Eltopia, Little Ben and Carola also ran.

SECOND RACE—Selling; maiden two-year-olds; five-eighths of a mile; Kilochan, 102 (Miller), 8 to 1 and 2 to 1, won; Arlington, 99 (E. J. Hennessy), 5 to 1 and 2 to 1, second; Estimate, 100 (Garner), 11 to 5 and even, third. Time, 1:03. Nomarks, Cavatina, Idle Fancy, Moonvine, Little Ruth, Lord Stanhope, Shule, Agrarenraw and Monteboy also ran.

THIRD RACE—Handicap; three-year-olds and up; one mile and a sixteenth; Phil Finch, 126 (Perrine), 7 to 1 and 6 to 5, won; Chimney Sweep, 110 (Radtke), 7 to 2 and 6 to 5, second; Batts, 105 (W. Knapp), 7 to 2 and 7 to 5, third. Time, 49 3-5. Abarjack, Jack McKeon, Black Prince and Ostrich also ran.

GOODWIN TO MEET ROUSE

Rouse O'Brien and Chester Goodwin will meet, May 14, at the Lincoln Club, Chelsea. There was some talk of the featherweight meeting next week, but Johnny Sheahy, Rouse's manager, is averse to anything but a Monday date at Chelsea.

TWENTY-FOUR PRIZES FOR YANKEE ATHLETES

ATHENS, Greece, May 2.—The jury of awards at the Olympic games issued their final prize list to-day. It shows that America captured twenty-four prizes, including twelve first prizes. This is the largest number of first prizes won by any of the teams competing.

France won twenty-one prizes, including ten first prizes. England got sixteen prizes, four of which were first prizes, and Greece captured thirty prizes, only nine of which being first prizes. Sweden got twelve prizes, Italy ten, Austria seven, Hungary seven, Denmark six, Switzerland five, Finland four, Canada three, Australia three, Belgium three, Norway two and Bohemia one.

LEAVITT FLIES B. A. A. COLORS

R. G. Leavitt, the winner of the 110-metre hurdles at Athens in the Olympian games, contrary to the reports in the newspapers, does not represent Williams College in his entry, but, in fact, is the only man the Boston Athletic Association is really interested in. In his trial heats and in the final, which he won, Leavitt wore the yellow unicorn on his breast.

His great success has delighted the members of the B. A. A., and a grand reception will probably be planned for the hurdler upon his return.

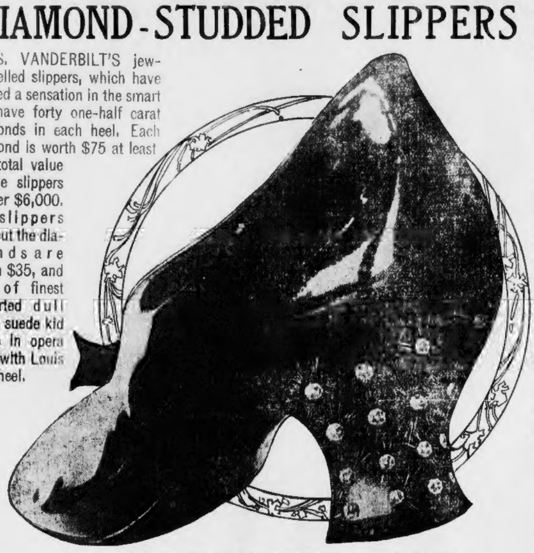
MRS. "REGGIE" VANDERBILT'S

Latest Whim of Millions Is $6,000 Pair of

DIAMOND-STUDDED SLIPPERS

MRS. VANDERBILT'S jewelled slippers, which have created a sensation in the smart set, have forty one-half carat diamonds in each heel. Each diamond is worth $75 at least. The total value of the slippers is over $6,000. The slippers without the diamonds are worth $35, and are of finest imported dull black suede kid made in opera style with Louis XV. heel.



ONE OF MRS. REGINALD VANDERBILT'S $6,000 SLIPPERS

These slippers are the only pair of their kind in the world. The diamonds are splendidly matched and are imbedded in the back and sides of the heels, where they are securely fastened by concealed settings. Their owner had them made abroad as the result of a whim.

ALL WOMEN SHOULD LEARN THE ART OF MANICURING

Study These Easy Lessons Written by an Expert

TO be well dressed is important to the woman who would make the most of herself, but to be "well groomed" is essential. One ought to include the other, but often it does not, and then the effect of a costly and becoming toilette is reduced to nil.

Women of limited incomes sometimes demur at the expense attending the "grooming" process, as it is, in one sense, certainly not one of the necessities of life. But expenditure in this direction is true economy, for the woman who pays regular visits to her manicurist, her hairdresser, her masseur, and the Turkish bath can dress on half of what would be required by her unconvinced sister to produce the same effect.

One of the branches of beauty culture that has reached the finest point of art is that of manicuring. It is difficult to imagine a world without professional manicures, and yet not so many years ago there was not one, and we were content if our nails were clean and cut in a "lady-like" fashion.

Nowadays the tips of milady's fingers are like jewels, and the owner, no matter in what walk of life her lot be cast, is not forgiven if her hands are hard and and unpleasant to the touch.

Lucky is she who escapes the responsibility of self-manicuring, and can visit daily or tri-weekly the professional manicurist, but that luxury is not within the reach of all, and by following the directions laid down in this article very satisfactory results can be realized by an occasional visit to the manicurist, and a self-treatment faithfully carried out at home.

The first step is to soak the fingers in warm water and suds of castile soap, in which have been dropped a few drops of lemon juice or a good bleach sold for the purpose. In the absence of these a few drops of lemon juice can be pressed into service as a substitute.

The fingers should be soaked ten minutes and then the nails are in good condition to commence operations. With a blunt instrument that will not wound the flesh, the skin around the base of the nail should be pressed back, and this should also be done after each time of washing.

In this way the half-moons which are the beauty marks of the hands will be coaxed into view, for though they may be deeply hidden, they are sure to make their appearance if you are persistent. No hand can be beautiful without them, and on many they are present quite naturally.

Always remember that scissors and the cuticle of your finger nails are deadly enemies. Not even for severing the lifeless skin that clings to the nail should they be used unless it is absolutely necessary. Immediately after the nails have been freed from all superfluous skin is the moment for shaping the nails. This is done with a file, and the sensible woman will follow the middle course as to the style of cutting.

A little while ago it was decreed that the fashionable woman's nails must be very

Fingers May Be Made Tapering by Manicuring

Coaxing the Beauty Marks of Half-Moons Into Existence

Well-Kept Fingers the First Marks of Beauty

long and pointed, and if the object was to prove that the hands were strangers to work, it was certainly accomplished; but this extreme fashion excluded artistic pianoforte playing and other aristocratic amusements as effectually as it did menial work, and few adhered to it rigidly.

The nicest shape for the nail is oval or slightly pointed, and the almond-shaped nail is indicative of good birth. If the nail is flat it is probable that the fingers are not tapering and much can be done by manipulation to remedy that defect.

While the fingers are soft from the soaking they should be pressed in the manner indicated in one of the illustrations, and the fingers will soon assume a more tapering contour, and the nails become "almond" in form.

After filing the nails to the proper shape, a tiny emery board should be used to smoothen the rough edges, and if scissors must be called upon to remove any hard dead skin, or what is known as "hang-nails," let them be the curved scissors of fine steel that are sold specially for the purpose, and which do not injure the part.

A few drops of acid placed upon the skin that has been pushed away from the nail will keep it from growing again, and whenever you think of it during the day push back the skin at the base of the nail with the thumb-nail, until the required shape is thoroughly acquired.

You have no idea till you have tried it how much will be accomplished by this gentle persuasion ofttimes applied.

The nails are now ready to be polished, and a good cream, probably of rose tint, is first rubbed in. In some rare cases the nails are so pink naturally that the white cream is preferable for this purpose. Let the cream remain a few seconds to be absorbed, and then with an old polisher covered with nail-powder polish till the surface shines satisfactorily.

After this dip the fingers again in warm water to rinse off the cream and powder. It will not destroy the polish, but dull it momentarily, requiring only a second vigorous rub with a clean buffer on which there is no powder, or the palm of the hand, which cannot be improved upon as a buffer.

CHAPTER XVII.

The Newspaper Clipping

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner.

ON the morning that Philip Haggard received the strange telephone message an acquaintance of his, who was known to his friends as Freddie Delamere, was lying in bed later even than usual, after an extremely convivial evening and correspondingly late hours.

Such evenings and hours were the rule rather than the exception with Mr. Delamere, and Philip Haggard's description of him as "a queer Bohemian character" had been apt enough, when he told John Herries on their first meeting that he was acquainted with a man who knew John March and the murdered dancing-woman well.

A narrow shaft of sunlight had forced its way in through the crevice left by the badly fitting drawn blind, and lay—a vivid bar of gold—across the bedroom of the lodging-house, accentuating the note of dingy shabbiness like diamonds on a dirty hand.

When at last the slowly moving streak crept up to his face the sleeping man blinked, turned over, opened his eyes and yawned; then he looked with sleepy solemnity at the cheap watch, the ticking of which was so noisy that it might have been borrowed from an eight-day clock, and saw that the hour was approaching twelve.

Mr. Delamere pulled vigorously the bell pull by the head of the bed; then he reached out for a bathrobe and struggled into it.

"I wonder how that show of Farlow's went last night?" he said to himself, as he awaited the answer to his summons. "I hope the papers give him a soaking."

The charitable wish was colored by the fact that not only had Farlow declined the offer of Mr. Delamere's services as press agent, but had added insult to injury by refusing to lend Mr. Delamere five dollars.

Freddy Delamere was a jack-of-all-trades—which, no doubt, accounted for his usual condition of impecuniosity. He had been an actor with over-night companies. Occasionally he would supplement his income by acting as intermediary between the man with "a fine diamond ring to sell dirt cheap" and the comic singer who had just made a hit.

There were times when Freddy Delamere made a good deal of money from these and other sources; but his income was subject to serious fluctuations. Last night, too, he had lost considerably at cards with "some of the boys," and was, in his own words, "dead broke to the world." Something would have to be done to raise the wind, he reflected.

After a while there was a knock on the door, and a grimy servant girl, with her hair twisted up in curl papers, made her appearance with a newspaper and what the landlady, Mrs. Preedy, called Mr. Delamere's "coffee and rolls."

As he sipped the liquid, Delamere opened the paper and turned to the notice of last night's production. He smiled. Farlow had got it hot. Conceited ass to think a Broadway audience would swallow his Hamlet. Why, Farlow was only fit for the "rubes"! Ah, this was good. "Mr. Farlow in the title-role was funny without being Hamlet."

A Real Hero

Mr. Delamere smiled appreciatively, read the short notice through, then turned to the other columns.

"By Jove, this is queer!" he exclaimed, with a sudden look of interest in his china-blue eyes.

His attention had been arrested by the news of Olga Vail's escape on the previous evening from the wrecked train.

"And she was last seen near the grounds of Mr. Haggard, but a careful police search was fruitless from the newspaper account. "Wonder if Haggard knows more than he's admitted. He's got an eye for a pretty girl. It was smart of her to get away so neatly; and, of course, she never did the murder, in spite of the sham diamonds that were found in her room. Ten to one it was Zingara's husband who was in the flat at the time we knocked at the door."

Delamere had been one of the noisy party who had gone to the March flat on the night of Zingara's murder. He himself had been the first to discover the crime, and that fact had for weeks afterward magnified his importance, not only in his own estimation, but among the wide circle of his acquaintance.

Men who never before had shown much desire to know him sought eagerly the privilege of buying him drinks, while he favored them with his version of the affair.

"Zingara had invited a few of us to supper that night—it was I, of course, who practically brought her out in town," Freddy would say—he had made the statement so often that he had almost come to believe it was true. "Her husband had been away for some days, not that if he had been at home it would have made much difference. He generally cleared out when any of his wife's pals came—as though he fancied they weren't classy enough for him; not me, of course, but some of the others, you know.

"Well, we turned up in pretty lively fashion, I give you my word, and knocked; no answer. Knocked again. As still as the grave inside the flat; but the light was burning in the hall—we could see that through the fanlight over the door. Suddenly it was turned out."

A Search

At this point Mr. Delamere usually made a dramatic pause in his story, and patiently expected to be pressed by one of his audience to have "another of the same."

"We waited; still no answer. Naturally we never thought of anything being amiss; it was like one of Zingara's tricks to keep us outside knocking, for a lark. So I just borrowed a hairpin from Lottie Ray and picked the lock. I can tell you that door flew open in two twos."

The party had streamed inside, laughing and singing boisterously into the sitting-room. They found it empty. They took it for granted that, in pursuance of her joke, Zingara was hiding elsewhere in the flat.

"We'll soon fire her out," one of the intruders cried. "Meanwhile we'll make ourselves comfortable!"

They made a raid upon a box of cigarettes and a bottle of whiskey, and waited for their friend to appear.

But the minutes passed, and she did not come. Gradually a hush began to fall on the noisy laughter.

"Zingara!" Delamere had yelled, going to the door. There was no answer. "A joke's a joke, but it spoils fun to carry it too far. Come out and show yourself. We know you're there!"

Still no answer.

"It looks queer—very queer," said one of the party at last. Their boisterous elation seemed to have evaporated. The flat was so silent, yet they knew that someone had been within at the time when they knocked—and there was no other outer door to the flat.

"We'll give you five more minutes, and if you don't come we'll rout you out!" cried Delamere to their invisible hostess.

Still no answer. The little knot of guests began to exchange odd glances. In spite of themselves an unconfessed vague uneasiness was stealing over them—why, they could hardly have said.

"Here, we've had enough of this!" cried Delamere at last. "We know she's here, and we're going to find her."

A Suspicious Thing

He led the way into the hall, breaking noisily into a song—perhaps to conceal a vague, growing nervousness. The light had been extinguished in the hall, and as he walked to the bedroom door Delamere struck a match.

The discordant song ended abruptly at the horror that met his eyes just within the half-open bedroom door. And then that wild, panic-stricken stampede down into the street.

In telling the story there was one detail that Freddy Delamere did not think it necessary to mention—how when he reached home that night he had taken from his pocket something wrapped in a newspaper, that he had immediately hidden away in his rooms.

In the first instance, Delamere had not deliberately intended to steal it—that silver cigarette box, which had been a presentation gift to the dead woman from a few of those who had helped Zingara to fritter away her salary almost as soon as she got it.

How to Concoct a Delicious Tid-Bit That Can Be Munched at From Morning Till Night

By Dorothy Dix

Minced Character on Toast

- 1 absent individual.
- 1 half dozen sharp tongues.
- 1 lb. surmises.
- 1 oz. suspicion.
- Cayenne to taste.

A FAVORITE dish to serve at afternoon teas, for those who like something hot and piquant, is minced character on toast. Like caviare, it whets the appetite for more, and as it is so easily cooked up it is no wonder that it has become a universal accompaniment to the cup that cheers and inclines to gossip.

To make it, select as the basis of the dish an absent individual. A female is best, as a female can be much more thoroughly desiccated than a male, the latter being tougher, and with thicker skin, and more general resistance, but if a female is not handy, quite a palatable and spicy compound can be prepared out of a male, especially if one with a dark brown past is chosen.

Gourmets insist, however, that nothing equals a female, particularly if she has been raised poor and suddenly fattened up by marrying rich, or if she has been partially macerated in the divorce mill, or even if she is only a nice plump actress.

Having caught your hare, so to speak, mince it as finely as possible. Be careful that it is pulled limb from limb and that no shred of respectability is left to it.

This may be easily done by turning loose a lot of tongues on it. These, before beginning business, are invariably whetted to a razor edge on envy. They can always be relied upon to do the work thoroughly and to reduce the absent individual to a pulp in a few minutes.

Next obtain from the nearest scandalmonger a pound of surmises. It is immaterial whether they have any grounds in them or not; but the kind that yield the best results are black and nebulous, and have the odor of limburger cheese.

Blend the surmises thoroughly with one ounce of strong suspicion of the absent individual's past and present and future motives and intentions and acts.

Add cayenne to taste.

Any sort of tabasco speeches will do, but the hotter the better, and for imparting a flavor to the dish that tickles the palate of an epicure there is nothing like throwing in a liberal handful of reminiscences about the time when the absent individual used to wear a milkpail instead of a tiara on her head, or what the neighbors say about the way she used to get American Beauty roses, although she was married, or why he probably got a divorce, although nobody knows.

Marianate the shredded character thoroughly in this sauce, and serve sandwiched in between slices of "of-course-I-don't-believe-it-but-they-do-say," and "I-wouldn't-tell-anybody-but-you-and-it's-in-the-strictest-secrecy." And then—yum—yum!

This tid-bit is especially popular at Summer and Winter resorts that cater to the idle rich, who develop such an inordinate fondness for it that they munch it all day long.

Minced character on toast cannot be recommended as wholesome, or nutritious, but, unfortunately, the thing we like is never good for us.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

A WASTE OF TIME

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am in love with a young man who treats me very mean. He makes engagements with me every time he meets me, but never keeps them. When I meet him again he will make every effort to be friends and beg me to excuse him. He will then make another engagement and deliberately disappoint me. I try to forgive him, for I love him very much, but I cannot invite him to call on me, as my people object on account of him getting intoxicated. He spends his Sundays drinking, but still he acts as if he cared for me when he is with me.

ANNIE.

YOU are very foolish to have anything to do with him. He treats you very shabbily, and your pride should keep you from making any more engagements with him. Do not throw yourself away on a man who drinks and who is unreliable.

THE TROUBLES OF LOVE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a boy of eighteen and am earning a salary of $15 per week. Have known a girl of seventeen for almost five years and have learned to love her, and have reason to believe that my love is reciprocated. Her parents encourage our friendship and seem to like me very much.

Now, my mother always had a dislike for that girl which I cannot explain, and she went so far as to forbid me to speak to her. I have tried to reason with her, but to no avail. Kindly advise me what course to pursue, as I love the girl dearly and could not afford to lose her.

R. L.

YOU are rather young to be worrying over love affairs. There is no harm in your being friends with the girl, and you should tell your mother that though you value and respect her opinion you must be allowed to choose your friends, provided there is nothing to their discredit.

Delicious Fish Breakfast

A VERY nice dish is made from haddock, known as "twice-laid," and is a very popular dish on board ship, where, of course, fresh fish is difficult to obtain, otherwise than that which has been kept on ice. In making "twice-laid," first of all soak the fish in water, boil it, and then remove all the flesh from the bones with a fork, keeping the flesh as much as possible in flakes. While the fish is still hot, mix it with some butter, and add, say, a teaspoonful of anchovy sauce to a quantity that will eventually fill an ordinary jelly mould. Mix the fish with about half its quantity of the remains of some boiled potatoes. Season with plenty of pepper, and press the whole into a well-buttered mould. Make the mould hot, and then turn it out, and ornament the base of the dish with some hard-boiled eggs cut in halves. This is a capital dish for breakfast.

Jack Harkaway's Son

CHAPTER XLVI.

The Tables Turned.

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner.

JACK HARKAWAY stood in the cabin door with the crew before him and Grierson and Edwards bound and helpless on the floor of the cabin, but he was far too wise to deceive himself into security in his new position.

The men conferred together and debated whether to stick to Jack and take chances of being honestly treated and justly dealt with or accept Grierson's word and make short work of Jack.

Jack knew that his shrift would be short if Grierson resumed command, and he was not altogether certain that he wouldn't find it rather unpleasant if the men stood by him, and he had to take chances on keeping Grierson in safe custody until he could reach New York.

His alert brain sought some way out of the difficulty.

Grierson, too, was under a strain, and Jack could see that the old rascal felt more than uncomfortable.

He realized that it was death for one of them, and he wasn't exactly certain which of them was going to be the corpse.

"Grierson," said Jack, loud enough for the men to hear him, "of course you understand exactly how we find ourselves. You have attempted to make away with me and failed. I could blow you into eternity in just one second, but I don't propose to do it."

"Not the least surprised," said Grierson, "considering that if you let off one of those bombs at such close quarters it would make a double funeral."

"Well," said Jack, "I don't know that it wouldn't be rather a praiseworthy sacrifice on my part to put an end to your career, even if I had to lose my own life to do it.

"But that isn't what I meant. I simply want to tell you straight that I propose to take you alive and deliver you to the American police, and if you manage to get away with your life from the Federal authorities it won't be my fault."

"Sounds easy, don't it?" said Grierson. "But unless I miss my guess you're going to be treated to a very fine display of disappointment in very short order." And he nodded toward the crew, who were still canvassing the proposition which Jack's sudden action had thrust upon them.

"All right," said Jack, "but your way of seeing the matter and my way of seeing it are altogether different."

He realized that a bold stroke was the only way of winning out in the desperate game he had begun.

"Say, boys," he called out. "I haven't time to monkey any longer with this affair. Get back to your posts and attend to your duties.

"I am going to take this ship to New York, and you boys are going to help me. Then I shall hand over these men to the authorities and let you all go. If you interfere with me it will go hard with you when the United States Government finds it out.

"Here," he added, beckoning to a couple of the men whom he thought he could trust, "come and take these two prisoners to the brig and lock them in safely. Then bring me the keys and see that you don't give them any chance to escape."

The two men he indicated stepped forward and laid hold of Edwards, whom they unceremoniously spread-eagled, and lugged off to the ship's lockup.

Jack turned to the other men who still stood irresolutely.

"In just one minute I shall expect you all to be about your duties," he said. "Any man found loafing about the deck after that time will be treated as a mutineer. And he won't need any second treatment, either."

"Stop, men, stop! This man has no authority!" shouted Grierson. "Don't believe a word he says. You'll find he is crazy, and a crazy man is hardly a safe skipper. I tell you, if you let him take command he'll send the ship and the whole caboodle of you to the bottom."

The men, who had hesitated and were turning away to go to their posts, now faced about and almost unanimously approached Jack.

The men would stand by a man they knew, bad and all as he was, rather than take up with the unknown Harkaway and face something new and possibly even more dangerous than the old tiger of a skipper, whom so many of them had cause to fear.

Jack saw he must act quickly.

IMMENSE SONG "HIT," 15c.

SO LONG MARY

George M. Cohan has probably never written a greater sweeping song success since his great "hits," "Give My Regards to Broadway" and "The Yankee Doodle Boy," than his present sweeping success, "So Long, Mary," now being sung with such great applause by Fay Templeton in "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway." "Forty-five Minutes" has been the theatrical "hit" of the season, and by all odds its greatest song "hit" has been "So Long, Mary." By special arrangement we will furnish this beautiful song of sentiment a short time for only 15c. a copy; or, should you already have "So Long, Mary," you may substitute either of the following very popular "hits" from the same opera: "Mary Is a Grand Old Name," or "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway." (Both songs are from George Cohan's latest musical play mentioned above.) To secure this special 15c. price, send today—NOW.

PIANO SLAUGHTER

STORAGE SALE

A GREAT many people are ignorant of the fact that the best possible opportunity to buy a piano at the lowest possible price is to get one at the Storage Sale. Sometimes the finest pianos that are made go almost for a song. Some pianos of the best makes that have been used only slightly, and at that in the best of homes, are sold for prices that seem impossibly low. New and second-hand pianos are sold regardless of price.

Pianos go for prices much lower than an auction would bring. There is no one to bid at a piano storage sale, the price is simply put on; first come, first served, and the careful, economical man or woman who wants to buy a piano economically, in fact, more than economically, will watch the storage sales carefully.

The gilded piano stores, with their costly appointments, their high salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the trouble to look around a little, go up where the rents are not so high and buy your piano right.

Several nice upright pianos which must be sold at a sacrifice; 2 nice uprights, Chickering and Vose, $40 and $50; nearly new mahogany uprights, 3 pedals, latest style, at ¼ Boston prices; reason why, no large rents, big salaries or commissions to be paid; no fancy floors; our expenses about $5 a day; Boston warerooms' expense $300 to $500 daily; our terms the most liberal; free carting, free tuning and 3 months' lessons with each piano; why not see us at once and thus save the agents' enormous profits? SHAWMUT PIANO CO., 720A Shawmut av., Roxbury, Mass.; open till 9 P. M.

"I bought a piano from Lincoln & Parker. Where else should I go? They use people white."

This is a remark which was overheard this week. If you wish to be used white see us and hear the soul of the Krakauer sing. We are upstairs, opposite the Hotel Touraine.

LINCOLN & PARKER, 211 Tremont St

DON'T FORGET to see Blake when you purchase your piano; 150 always in stock, and you can select at prices from $75 to $450 for an upright that will cost more elsewhere. We give best value as 100,000 customers will testify. 564 Washington st., elevator; established 1869.

PROMINENT MUSIC TEACHER will sell her beautiful guaranteed upright piano cheap, cash or easy terms; would give one year's lessons to purchaser. Apply after 4 p. m., all day Sunday, at 30 Moreland st., Roxbury.

SEE the nice second-hand square piano and piano player that we offer in combination for $150. HENRY F. MILLER & SONS PIANO CO., 395 Boylston st.

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, MAY 2, 1906

The Teachers of the Nation

They Are the Teachers of the Public Schools. Their Work Is the Most Important That Any Men Do. They Are the Makers of THE FUTURE AMERICA

The school year now draws to a close. The city school children will leave the classes, and they will go, a few to the green country—the great mass, TO OUR NATIONAL SHAME BE IT SAID, to the dusty street, and the dull life of routine and monotony.

How long will it take the human race to give the right sort of appreciation to men that do the world's real work?

The public school teacher is the Christopher Columbus of the intellect. In the millions of unexplored brains among the school children of this country there is wealth far exceeding the material wealth of the continent that Columbus gave to the world.

The teachers themselves scarcely appreciate the great opportunity, the overwhelming importance of their work. Their minds are on results, not on self-appreciation.

This is the first century of universal reading; the first time in all the centuries of human life that the use of the brain has become universal through education.

In the generations past men have learned to use their fingers, their bows and arrows, spears, ox-carts, locomotives, bicycles, wireless telegraph, etc. They have conquered some of the powers of Nature.

But among the great mass of the people the greatest natural force of all, the force of the brain, has been neglected.

Those electricians and mechanics who harnessed Niagara were like children playing with paper windmills when compared to the American public school teacher, who is harnessing the brain of this nation.

In that brain lies the power that is going to do the great work, the work for which the world has been waiting through the centuries—the work of emancipation from poverty, from industrial slavery and all the other sorrows that follow in the wake of ignorance.

The editor who can talk to thousands or millions of men is inclined to think himself important.

But the editor is small in influence compared with the school teaching force.

Editors write for the men grown up to-day, men that are passing from the scene, as they themselves are passing.

The teacher talks to the generation of the future. He forms that generation. HE PLANTS A NEW TREE.

The editor only trims the branches of an old tree that has seen its best days.

A man desirous of having influence in this world should miss no opportunity TO TALK TO THE PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS.

To influence TEN intelligent TEACHERS means far more to the world of the future than to influence a THOUSAND intelligent men NOT teachers.

Behind each of the teachers of America one's imagination sees stretching out a long line of hundreds and even thousands of children. That long and mighty line of the future is the real hope of the present. For who would care to live, or feel his living earned, if he were not trying to make the future days better for future men, as those behind him struggled to make THIS day better for us?

The American school teacher is the great American thought manufacturer. Into his hands come the thousands of young minds that need direction and guidance, that by proper teaching are capable of almost unlimited development.

At every great gathering of teachers there sits a man who is shaping the mind that is to help shape society in the future. There sits a man who encourages investigation in youth, answers questions patiently, and helps to develop the American inventive genius of to-morrow.

The school teachers' career calls for great unselfishness, REAL devotion to duty.

The world has not realized yet what is due to children and what is due to those who teach children.

The man at the head of a petty court is gladly paid ten thousand dollars a year or more for fining and imprisoning unfortunate drunkards, FOR REGULATING THE HUMAN REFUSE OF THE WORLD.

The man in the court of education, the man who is fighting drunkenness IN THE FUTURE, fighting crime and building the nation of the future, is grudgingly paid a fifth or a tenth of the reward that goes cheerfully to men doing work infinitely less worthy.

The teacher is as unselfish as those coral insects that work deep in the blue sea, slowly, patiently raising an island—a glorious addition to the world—which they are destined never to see.

The teachers are patiently building up a better state of society, a better people. THERE IS NO PROGRESS EXCEPT THROUGH KNOWLEDGE.

The school teacher is the enemy of superstition, of bigotry, of ignorance, OF ALL THE SPIRITUAL FOES OF MANKIND.

We speak patronizingly of the Dark Ages, BUT THESE ARE THE DARK AGES. And the teachers are the light-bearers, the Lucifers FREE from pride, doing their great work for the future in self-abnegation.

Teachers are not only important in America because they educate the children, BUT ALSO IMPORTANT BECAUSE THEY EDUCATE THE PARENTS OF THE CHILDREN.

When the public school shall have existed for a century or more all the parents of the country will be TEACHERS, and the labor of the school teacher will be greatly lightened.

But to-day, in so many homes where poverty spells ignorance, IT IS THE CHILDREN THAT TEACH THE FATHER AND THE MOTHER THE AMERICAN IDEA, THE SCIENTIFIC FACT, THE SIMPLE ARITHMETICAL PROCESS, OR EVEN THE FUNDAMENTAL ART OF READING. The children are the teachers of the fathers and the mothers and the public school teachers are the TEACHERS OF ALL.

The public school teachers are the most marvellous family-men in the world's history. They are the intellectual fathers of thousands of children and of grown men and women. Theirs is a very great opportunity and responsibility.

The mind of the next generation will reflect NOT THE MIND OF THE EDITOR OR THE CLERGYMAN OR THE LITERARY INDIVIDUAL OF TO-DAY, BUT THE MIND OF THE PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHER.

And there is nothing more important than that the teachers should, with the deepest sense of responsibility, devote their best energies to this constant thought, "What am I creating as the public opinion of the future?"

There is no question that the public should gladly and eagerly make it possible for the school teachers to live in comfort, free from anxiety as to their FUTURE, well rewarded for good work in the PRESENT.

A nation rich enough to pay nearly $200,000,000 a year in pensions to good men that helped to kill enemies should be willing to pay those MORE important men who are helping to bring about the day when killing will stop, who are giving to the nation the only REAL ASSET THAT IT HAS—the good and enlightened citizen.

GIVE, GIVE, GIVE

By George M. Cohan

(Mr. Cohan realized nearly $2,000 for the Hearst Fund for San Francisco Sufferers by selling New York Evening Journals on the streets of New York. The following appeal is from his publication "The Stage.")

DON'T stop to think of what's occurred.
Don't stop to even waste a word,
Don't stop to tell of what you've heard,
But give, give, give.

Don't stop to ask if all is true,
Don't stop to take a leader's cue,
Don't tell of what you'd like to do,
But give, give, give.

Don't talk about disasters old,
Don't stop to tell what you've been told,
Just hurry on, go get your gold,
And give, give, give.

Don't argue that the millionaire
Has failed to proffer quite his share,
Don't measure figures here nor there,
But give, give, give.

Don't wait for later news to come,
Magnificent or paltry sum;
Don't stop to tell them who it's from,
But give, give, give.

Don't figure matters bound to mend,
Don't wonder how it's going to end,
Don't be afraid to urge your friend
To give, give, give.

Don't stop to tell of those you know
Who suffer loss and feel the blow,
Don't be afraid to ask your foe
To give, give, give.

Americans, both great and small,
From California, hear them call,
We're all for one and one for all,
Let's give, give, give.

Jottings

By Rev. Charles A. Crane

THE Boston Latin High Schools are now being agitated by a certain Greek verb, first person, singular number, future tense and active voice, and the name of this irritant is "skedo" and it has in it the meaning of the English word "Scatter."

* * *

A logical youth studying Greek was informed by his teacher that it is a rule that all rules have an exception, whereupon the youth rose to the occasion and smote his teacher with the remark that "If it is a rule that all rules have exceptions, THAT rule must have an exception which would prove that one rule at least has no exception."

While So Many False Standards Are Set Up to Follow, the Law of Divine Healing Is Obscured

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

WITHIN a few miles' circuit from the spot where I am sitting live four separate examples of the inaccuracy of medical science in its diagnosis of disease and of the power of mental or spiritual laws to heal.

Each of the four cases was declared incurable by a bevy of skilled physicians. One was an invalid of many years' duration, "incurable spinal disease;" another of four years' complications, another of three and the other of a similar period.

Each disease was different from the other three; two patients were men and two were women. In no one of the cases had any physician suggested that the malady had any nervous or mental origin, but had declared it to be a physical condition of grave nature, and "incurable."

All four of these people are robust and well to-day, able to attend to their duties and to enjoy all life's pleasures.

They are an astonishment to all their friends and a puzzle to the medical profession.

Two were treated by Christian Science healers and two by New Thought disciples (the two latter practitioners being considered quite out of the true path by the Eddy school. Yet the law worked and the sick were healed.)

This healing is not a temporary matter. One is a case of more than five years' standing, the others more than a year.

I could multiply such cases which have come under my personal observation by the score, but I speak now of these four particularly, because they are all people I see continually.

Let the World Awake

IT is well for the doubting world to awaken to the fact that the same spiritual law prevails to-day which prevailed in the days when the Great Master and the Disciples were upon the earth.

Sometimes the people cured fall sick again and return to doctors.

Sometimes the effort to cure fails; the same can be said of the patients of regular practitioners of medicine.

When a doctor of homoeopathic or allopathic school fails to cure, or when his patient returns for further treatment, or goes to another physician, no one thinks it a proof that all doctors are frauds or charlatans; and the doctors who have failed in the cure says it is the fault of the patient, who did not follow directions, or else that it is an incurable malady beyond the reach of science.

When the mental or spiritual law (just as you choose to call it, for there is but one law in the universe) fails, the world lifts its voice in a loud protest against "charlatans" and "fakes."

And all who believe in the spiritual law are classed as cranks and credulous fools.

But all this will pass away, and by and by medical science will pass away, and the world will awaken to the mighty truth that is sweeping over the world.

Humanity must, however, grow into this thought before accepting it blindly.

And while there is so much nervous agitation in the air, and so many false standards are set up for the world to worship, the clear, white truth of the law will be obscured under fogs and clouds.

The Spirit Heals

UNTIL a child can walk, it creeps; until it can walk alone, it is led, and medical science is oftentimes a strong, safe hand to guide the weak to the realm of health. It means well, and it tries to do good.

No good is accomplished by antagonizing the public mind when contagious maladies prevail, and no good is accomplished by refusing medical aid to one who desires it.

But meantime let us not shut our eyes to the facts which exist all about us, of the glorious results achieved by the spiritual law.

That it does not do all things the most devout adherents must confess; that it does seeming miracles the most unbelieving mind must also confess.

One of the cases referred to above was a young woman, who spent two years in famous sanitariums, under the care of skilled specialists; then she came under other great well-known specialists, was operated upon in the most approved modern style, and grew steadily worse.

Finally she was told by all physicians consulted that no skill on earth could help her; that her condition was chronic, and while she lived the only help for her was morphine to ease her paroxysm of pain.

Yet a woman who had herself been spiritually healed of eight years' invalidism came into the sufferer's life, and by the law brought this girl into perfect health and vigor.

I know her intimately; I saw her during those dreadful years of sickness; I know what the doctors said of her case, and I see her now daily, fair, and beautiful and radiant, and how can I question that the power of the spirit heals?

The other three cases are quite as remarkable.

Let us be awake to the wonders of this age in which we live.

Let us not be "doubting Thomases" or fossils.
